

Parasites are Forever

EMOP XII

12th European Multicolloquium of Parasitology

TURKU, FINLAND, JULY 20-24th, 2016

1st Announcement

Parasitologie sans Frontières – EMOP is an international conference, not just European, and all fields of parasitology from all corners of the world are warmly welcomed!

One Health, from Parasitic Point of View – The anthropocentric view of humans is not shared by parasites infecting humans among other host species. In order to help control parasite infections, EMOP XII aims to emphasize the parasitic point of view.

Turku is the oldest city in Finland, settled in the 13th century, and the region now has over 300.000 inhabitants. Turku is civilized (European Capital of Culture in 2011). The city is affected by the vicinity of the Turku archipelago, with the River Aura flowing through a blend of old and new. Turku is easily accessed by sea from Sweden (and Germany). Turku Airport is international, and Helsinki Airport, a leading hub between Asia and Europe, is less than 170 km (2.5-hour bus ride) away. The venue of EMOP XII is the LOGOMO Event Centre. Converted from a railroad locomotive garage-workshop, its architecture is a combination of old industrial milieu and modern style, with excellent facilities for EMOP XII. www.logomo.fi/en/home/

Exotic Northern Parasitology – EMOP XII will also host IWAP (International Workshop on Arctic Parasitology), but the average afternoon temperature in Turku in July is a pleasant +20 °C.

The Young in Mind – The European Federation of Parasitologists supports the attendance of member society PhD students in Parasitology and grants also Young Scientist Awards <http://www.eurofedpar.eu/>
